always leave a marsh.

Well hello there. Hello november. It is November 1995 and I guess that means another attempt for me to do a Funny children Zine. The first one came out in November 1993 + we were lucky enough to get reviewed in factsheet five by Larry-Bob at Holy Titchclamps. Monica^{TN} and I did it at a Fundraiser for her Zine. The 2nd one was put out in Nov. 1994 because I'd been working on it and that's how long it took and this one.... well it's actually supposed to be a video Zine, but as of now, I only have 4 submissions. Monica's^{TN} Elephants speaking french video, Yvette's skydiving video, and some other funny stuff. So I guess it will be a Funny children special someday.

i have to admit. I am the laziest when it comes to doing zines + answering mail lately. It's somehow Not as thrilling as it was at the beginning. I'm more excited about getting other people's zines. And it's exciting to be asked to collaborate with other zine-~~stuff~~ people. once I went to a zine-thing here in SF. I saw some people I KNew, but the host was a weiner. mean, and one of my friends told me that everyone thinks that about him. I really thought that making a zine would get me all this information on what? My favorite topics. Music - Queers and that's about it. So I spend all my free time in between those two worlds. the internet seems like a good idea. Squishing all that info out seems really risky. I wonder if there's a max. cap. to cyberspace. If my phone rings one more time I think I'll flip. Like erica on All my children...

it's so exciting. for the first time in 25 years... All my Children has introduced a gay male character! Let's see how long it lasts. this gay-Ness of "Mr. D", the hunky 30-ish high School teacher Michael Delaney, (brother of Laurel Dillon. Trevors wife.) is revealed on Friday Nov. 3rd. All Souls day was the 2nd. He is letting Dixie come in and observe as part of her college education. he tells dixie

OTHER IMPORTANT USES

FOR CSR

CSR works out coffee, tea and many other hard to remove stains (including most lipstick) from any washable fabric even after a stain has set.

CSR takes off unsightly coffee and tea stains from Melmac, china, ceramic or plastic dinnerware. It will not etch or damage Melmac in any way.

CSR is ideal for brightening tile, porcelain, enamel and stainless steel. Once you try CSR you'll never want to be without it.

"No, you're Not my type... I'm Not looking for a woman". She teases him. "You're married to Margaret Thatcher?" "You're married to a Rock-Star...?" "No NO NO. I'm Gity." Actually Says it! Dixies choked, but acted cool. but asks - "what if it comes up here? In the class?" we'll see!

I'd been hearing a Buzz on this Queer band from L.A. called Extra fancy. I heard they would play at lollapalooza on the second stage and I decided I'd have to see for myself. All these little kids were all running around and I felt really out of place. As a 24 year old, at a Queer So this drag Queen comes out and really Fucks with the crowd and gives away a bunch of singles and CDs and then she announces the band. They come out and put on a show. I was up front center stage looking like a big geek. The singer was cute and I tried to flirt with him. but he didn't notice. I don't really know how to flirt anyway. Anyway - we got him to sign our records + got invited to another e.f. show the next night at the Paradise lounge. We went and it was great. I got pulled on stage + rolled around with Brian Grillo, the singer, and laughed + cheered. I saw them out a few months later. Brian is HIV+ and hopefully they're signed to a major label deal. I bought the CD at Virgin and it has Donita Sparks from L7, Perry Farrell, and Susan Tillett speaking on it. I'll see them again!

We went to see Tori Amos in 1992 at Bimbo's in San Francisco. before we lived here. David's sister came with us and some other friends and we got a chance to meet her after the show. David's sister had handed David a tampon in his pocket. During the show Tori talked about being young and listening to Led Zeppelin and fantasizing and her crotch - Any way ~ that was a funny part of the show. So when we got to her, David asked her if she would sign his tampon. And here it is. I don't know what's up with Tori Amos these days. She moves between New Mexico + ENGLAND. We haven't talked with her since last September. I wonder if she's signed anymore tampons this year I saw this Led Zeppelin tribute CD for sale and on the back near the end of it, listed a track with Robert Plant + Tori Amos.

Elizabeth Montgomery Dies, Star of 'Bewitched'

By Hurt A. Folkart
Los Angeles Times

Los Angeles

Elizabeth Montgomery, the actress who played the mischievous witch with the nasal twitch with enchanting whimsy, died yesterday morning.

The star of TV's hit series "Bewitched," who later forsook her single-dimensional character and became one of the best-known and most diverse actors in made-for-TV movies, was 57 according to her family, but several film anthologies list her birth year as 1933.

She died after a long struggle with cancer, said her agent and spokesman Howard Bragman.

With her when she died at home in Beverly Hills was her husband, actor Robert Foxworth, and her three children from a previous marriage.

She was the daughter of actor Robert Montgomery and stage actress Elizabeth Allen, and her first TV work came in 1951 as a summer repertory player on her father's "Robert Montgomery Presents." A decade later she had perfected her craft to a point where she was a convincing other-worldly Samantha Stephens, the crafty, always entertaining heroine of "Bewitched."

After Samantha and her clan left the airways, Montgomery made a dramatic metamorphosis and ended her career portraying deadly killers, hardened women or hapless victims.

"Bewitched" ran from 1964 to 1972, garnered several Emmys and beguiled the nation as Samantha herself beguiled her mortal husband, advertising executive Darin Stephens, played first by Dick York and later by Dick Sargent.

To get her way or solve problems, she would threaten to use her magical powers. First, she pondered the pending sorcery and then wiggled her nose to bring forth samples of the unearthly pranks that would befall those who had crossed her.

At the time of the series, Montgomery was married to its producer-director, William Asher (the third of her four husbands and father of her children).

A year after the show left the air, Montgomery began appearing in TV films in which she was either menacing or menaced.

The first of these was "The Victim," followed in 1974 by "Mrs. Sundance" and in 1975 by a memorable "Legend of Lizzie Borden."

In "A Case of Rape" she earned an Emmy nomination (one of nine nominations throughout her career) for her work as a sexually and emotionally abused heroine. The show, broadcast in 1974, earned one of the 10 highest ratings ever recorded for a made-for-TV film.

She remade "Dark Victory," the Bette Davis tear-jerker for TV, starred in the interracial melodrama "A Killing Affair" opposite O. J. Simpson, and was featured in "The Awakening Land," a 1978 miniseries.

In the 1960s, she was seen opposite Kirk Douglas in "Hush" and in 1960 with Foxworth, later to become her husband, in "Face to Face." In 1963 she played Blanche Taylor Moore, the North Carolina cashier who killed one husband, a boyfriend and was on her way to poisoning her second husband with arsenic when she was apprehended.

This year, she was seen in "Deadline for Murder: From the Files of Edna Buchanan." She played the title role, the colorful Miami police news reporter.

Montgomery summed up her busy career in 1992, telling an interviewer she was pleased with the variety of her characters over the years.

"They all have different kinds of 'feels' to them and that's probably one of the reasons why I've done them. I get letters from people saying one of the things they like best about what I've done since 'Bewitched' is that they never know what I'm going to do next."

most of my off time has been taken up by my record label- timmi-kafrecords. this year we released a CD from SpACK LE. it's their first and we're very excited! the next release will be a Split 7" with the Philadelphia band Perch. my new band is called Brown-Star.

now that it's over. I can write about it. I was in a band. Highlights: Performing at the Castro + Folsom Street Fairs the same year, playing Klubstitate, releasing

2 cassettes on my label. Getting signed to Kinetic Records. Playing with Pansy Division. That's it. Many lows - many visions + line-ups. But I sang + wrote and had fun + learned a lot about the world and myself. So now it will just be a small footnote in the MUZE machine. We never got famous or anything, but we played for a lot of people and sold a couple of cassettes. Thanks to everyone who oversaw us at one point, I had wanted to do a red dwarf Zine. I love that t.v. show so much. I'm always reaching for the queer sprinkles in this and actually any t.v. show. I think that maybe rimmer is Gay (Nice Name if so) and that he's secretly in love with lister. If you don't know this show - go rent the whole thing over the course of a couple of months. Tape them. These are keepers, and it's probably unlikely that you will ever see them on t.v. where you live. I'm nuts for them. I have 2 t-shirts and a cat CD. I'm a dork!

REDDWARP the Series

I went to L.A. this last weekend and was turned on to Noise Addict.
